I feel strong about,
my friend, because he is very nice to me. He gives me toys, he always does what I want. I always tell funny jokes. He laughs. And sometimes he makes me laugh. When ever we play a game he says, "good game!"

even if I win. We were pals since first grade and he was nice to me, and I was nice to him. We usually go in his room, and do something fun. If we were tired we'll just watch t.v. And then I have to go home. I get in bed and dream of how much good times we had.

Dear Mrs. Johnson - I think my family should help poor people because my family said helping poor people is good but my family doesn't do that stuff. Every Sunday my family goes to the church in the morning. We see poor people. I want to help them but my family doesn't know how to help poor people. My mom always wants me to believe what God said that if you give something to some one you feel happy and if you give some money to the person you feel happy. I am happy if I help poor people.
