Egyptians Created Advanced Civilization!

Did Egyptians start a great civilization? Well, they didn't use technology to build pyramids. Another reason is that they were the first to mummify people. They were also first to start great education.

My first reason is that they built enormous pyramids without technology. It is shown in research that "Workers used A-shaped tools to make sure the ground was leveled." To make sure the ground was leveled, they started by marking the center of the crossbar and hanging a weight cord from the top A. The builders would determine if it was perfectly leveled. After each rock was marked and cut, workers raised it to a wooden sled. They then put it to a flat bottomed wooden boat. They used wooden mallet, stoned hammer with wooden handles.

Another reason is that they mummify people. They were very skilled at preserving the bodies of dead. They developed the art of making mummies so the loved ones can stay after life. They removed all their internal organs. The lungs, liver and stomach was stored in a jar. The Egyptians spent seventy days preserving bodies. They took the brain out of their head. Scientist have proven that "They kept the heart in the human body, because they believed it stored intelligence and emotions." Egyptians myth had said "The dead took the heart to do the final test to see if they passed or failed. The jars that stored the internal organs were stored with the mummy's bodies, in a tomb."

last reason is that they started a good education. They were the first people to learn about math, 3,500 years ago. It is believed that "Thoth, the moon god wrote the book "How to obtain information about all things mysterious and dark." He explained how to add, subtract, multiply and divide fractions, how to calculate the area of circles, squares and triangles. People believe "They used millimeter stone gauges with lines to measure how much the Nile river rose, they could determine where it was a good harvest or bad." They hoped it would be 7.6 m which meant it would be just enough water. The Egyptians were also first to drink Castor berries oil to cure upset stomach. They also chewed it for the same ambient.

For above reasons, Egyptians started a great civilization. They also made big pyramids without technology. They were first to make mummy. Last reason is that they had great education.

In this essay, I will discuss my opinions about global warming. Global warming is a very serious issue. Global warming is changing the earth in ways like never before. The actions of humans led to the melting of once frozen glaciers, dividing seas, and change in climate. Us, the humans, must change our ways in order to survive.

One reason global warming is serious is because glaciers are melting. The destruction of glaciers will lead to the loss of many civilizations. For example if glaciers melt, their water will rise up sea-levels and cause floods. As Al Gore has said in his movie, "The Inconvenient Truth", if the seas rise, many cities near bodies of water will be completely under water, including Manhattan. We need to change our impact on the earth.

Another reason humans need to change is because they pollute a lot. Business men, greedy animals, harm Mother Nature for their profit. For example, the toxic wastes are rising in numbers and with no room in the landfill. Business men dump it into the sea, harming/poisoning the sea creatures in the seas. As it once happened in history, when farmers began using DDT's to kill pests, it resulted in a near loss of species. The insects were poisoned and since they are the beginning of a food chain, the eagles eat the fish that eat the insects that were poisoned. The eagle race couldn't reproduce because when the females layed eggs, the shell was too soft and the hatching died before it came out.

of its shell. This shows that another species might become extinct and this time the damage is too great.

The final reason global warming is serious is because it has the disastrous ability to change the climate. Climate is another form of mother nature; whoever controls it controls nature. For example, the hurricanes are getting stronger and the heat is melting Antarctica. Al Gore also said that "For the first time since 1980, the heat level is very much over normal and is bigger than 1980."
Stop global warming now!

In this essay, I have supported my claim and provided real life info. What I am trying to say is, this planet is ours! We ourselves are destroying it. Help mother earth!
